leaving. it doesn't matter. ours is not a caravan of despair.

“wade in the water”

(chorus) wade in the water, wade in the water, children.
wade in the water,
god's gonna trouble the water.

who are those children dressed in white,
(god's gonna trouble the water)
must be the children of the israelites (god's gonna trouble the water) (chorus)

i stepped in the water and the water was cold (god's gonna trouble the water.)
it chilled my body but not my soul.
(god's gonna trouble the water) (chorus)

well i went to the water one day to pray (god's gonna trouble the water)
my soul got happy and i stayed all day.
(god's gonna trouble the water). (chorus)

now i'm looking for where that treasure is found (god's gonna trouble the water)
and i'm walkin' every step on holy ground.
(gods gonna trouble the water). (chorus)

opening our hearts

ann diamond

psalm 23 (adapted from opening to you)

source of my being, you are my guide, and i am content you lead me to rest in sweet grasses, to lie down beside quiet waters, and i am refreshed.
i am led along a path that unwinds in a pattern of compassion and justice, yet even when that path unfolds before me in the shadow of death, i am no longer afraid for i find comfort in letting go of the outcome, but instead seeing the very steps before me more clearly.
a feast for life is placed before me, even in the midst of my adversity, each moment anointed with goodness.
surely my cup is overflowing. beauty and mercy walk before me, and behind me, above and below me.
and all the days of my life, i will live and move and have my being in your being.

john 12: 24-25 (the message)

"listen carefully: unless a grain of wheat is buried in the ground, dead to the world, it is never any more than a grain of wheat. but if it is buried, it sprouts and reproduces itself many times over. in the same way, anyone who holds on to life just as it destroys that life. but if you let it go, reckless in your love, you'll have it forever, real and eternal.
