gift of story

read by todd kirk

matthew 5: 3-6, 10, 43-48

"congratulations to the poor in spirit! god's realm belongs to them. congratulations to those who grieve, they will find consolation. congratulations to those who are hungry for justice. they will have a feast. congratulations to those who have suffered persecution for the sake of justice. the realm of god belongs to them..."

you were once told 'love your neighbor' and 'hate your enemy.' i tell you to love your enemy and pray for your persecutors. for god causes the sun to rise on both the bad and the good, and the rain to fall on both the just and the unjust. if you simply love those who love you, or greet only your friends, what is commendable in that? to sum up, you are to be as unstinting in your generosity in the way god's generosity is unstinting."

every moment is a divine encounter; every facet is an exposure to the boundless energies by which life is sustained and our spirits made whole. – howard thurman if the church is founded on the good news of jesus christ, how did it become so radically disconnected from the itinerant preacher from nazareth? – ilia delio

the cross is not magic. it does not magically dispel the course of evil, or stop global warming, or alter the laws of thermodynamics. the cross is an event in which the difficulty is not dispelled but disclosed, not extinguished but exposed, not crossed out but made visible. – john caputo
